SUCCESS STORY

Numada Healthcare partnership with Fareport.

“[Fareport] a collaborative training company who deliver impactful apprenticeship courses and development programmes, fostering skills growth and career readiness.”

Kerrie Hill, Director of Operations

How we partnered with Numada

Numada have worked with Fareport Training for over 20 years. Predominantly delivering health and social care apprenticeships and more recently HR support and People Professional. We faced challenges with new managers moving into the role and adapting. We worked with Fareport to implement a management development programme which was successful.

The impact

This biggest benefit of an Apprenticeship is the combination of practical experience and career progression opportunities, which develops both skills and professional status. Apprenticeships in health and social care provide a structured, progressive pathway from hands-on care to leadership and management.

We have had several members of staff follow a natural career progression in our services. As they progress through Levels 3–5, this supports the services in having highly trained, professional senior carers, team leaders, and managers who already understand the service, the people supported, and the organisation’s culture.

We found the Fareport training’s support for our apprenticeship courses and development programmes to be highly effective, fostering significant professional growth within our team. The collaboration was excellent, leading to a consistently positive and results-driven partnership.

Why Fareport? Because your apprentices - and your business - deserve the best support.
