How it Works

Apprenticeship Delivery

Delivery is flexible and predominantly completed in the workplace. There are no set times for commencing an Apprenticeship and the start date will be agreed with you, your employer and the training provider. The cost of the Apprenticeship is covered by the employer. As an independent training provider, we also offer support as to how this works. Fareport Training only deliver Apprenticeships for individuals who are already employed.

Apprenticeships allow you to complete training and gain a qualification while working, so you don't sacrifice your wage. Apprenticeships provide the materials and training to improve on your knowledge, skills and behaviours (KSBs) which are relevant to your job role. majority of your training is completed during your working hours, with the off-the-job training making up approximately 20% of your training criteria.

Course Funding

One of the biggest benefits of Apprenticeships is that they are fully funded. This means you as an apprentice will not have to pay tuition fees for the training. The cost is covered either by the Government or by your employer through the Apprenticeship Levy.

Employers also pay apprentices a wage from day one. This helps to provide peace of mind that you will gain valuable skills, qualifications, and workplace experience without the financial burden of higher education.

If you are already employed and would like to complete an apprenticeship, you should first discuss this with your line manager. If your manager agrees, they can contact Fareport Training to explore suitable apprenticeship opportunities.

Being an apprentice

Functional Skills

If you're aged 16–18 and don't already have your English and Maths qualifications, you'll work towards achieving Functional Skills as part of your Apprenticeship. These skills not only support your learning but also give you valuable tools for everyday life and future employment. From 2025, learners aged 19 and over won't need to complete Functional Skills, but we'll still offer support if you'd like to improve your skills in these areas.

Training Hours

All apprentices working 30 hours or more per week must receive a minimum average of 6 hours per week of “off-the-job” training over the duration of their programme. These hours must be planned, directly linked to the Apprenticeship standard, and recorded as evidence of learning.

Who can do an Apprenticeship?

- ✓ Be 16 years or older
- ✓ Be employed in a relevant role or applying for an Apprenticeship vacancy.
- ✓ Not already be in full-time education.
- ✓ Be living in England.

This means that before you can enrol, you either need to apply for a new Apprenticeship role with an employer or already be working in a job that matches the Apprenticeship course you want to successfully complete.

What we need from you

- ✓ Maths & English assessment
- ✓ Completed application form
- ✓ Identification
- ✓ Evidence of previous learning

Onboarding Process

As part of our onboarding process, each apprentice will undergo a number of checks and assessments. These are vital to ensure that the apprentice gets the relevant support needed, and it helps us understand their Recognised Prior Learning (RPL) which can stop them repeating any modules they already achieved in other training.

If you do not meet the requirements, we will inform you and explain the reasons why.
